Introduction by Joe Nathanson
Brian advocates for improving transportation throughout the Baltimore –
Washington region with a non-profit, the Central Maryland Transportation Alliance. He came to transportation policy by way of caring how communities and regions work and realizing the powerful shaping force transportation systems have on equity, the economy, quality of life and the environment. He was previously Concurrency Manager for Carroll County Maryland and an industrial corridor planner in Chicago. Brian was born in Red Bank, New Jersey and raised in Bellevue, Washington. Since 2010 Brian has been a resident of Washington, DC and regularly rides the MARC commuter rail or teleworks.
9. Adjournment.
